

July 18, 2011

DEAR BOOK LOVER | JULY 18, 2011, 12:41 P.M. ET

Book Lover: Winning Audiobooks

By CYNTHIA CROSSEN

MORE IN BOOKS »

Article

Comments

Email Print Save This Like + More Text

What makes a good audiobook? It's not just about the words—it's about how the narrator says them. In this podcast, I review some of the winners of the 2011 Audies, the Audio Publishers Association's annual awards for the best audio books.

The podcast includes clips of Johnny Depp reading Keith Richards' "Life," Sean Barrett reading Cormac McCarthy's "No Country for Old Men," Emma Thompson reading "Nanny McPhee Returns" and more.

Cynthia Crossen on the 2011 Audies

PLAY AUDIO

Past Dear Book Lover columns have also covered humorous audiobooks and multivoice recordings.

Write to Cynthia Crossen at cynthia.crossen@wsj.com

When life happens, don't worry.

citi

Available to WSJ.com Subscribers

http://www.marketwatch.com/podcast/Wall%20Street%20Journal%20Editors'%20Picks?sc_oqe=weekly

<http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052702304521304576448441312367976.html>